Insurance fraud raids a win for all drivers: Chief Blair

37 people accused of staging fraudulent accidents, making phoney medical claims

An extensive investigation into a multimillion-dollar auto-insurance scam led to the arrest of 37 people in early-morning raids across the GTA on Thursday.

The investigation — which stemmed from one suspicious accident report made in 2009 — examined 77 crashes that police say were staged so those allegedly involved could profit from insurance claims.

At a news conference Thursday, Toronto police Chief Bill Blair said the arrests, which resulted in more than 130 charges, were a "very important result for every citizen of Ontario," since insurance fraud results in premium increases provincewide.

The scheme, allegedly headed by 10 ringleaders, accounted for millions of dollars in losses, said Insp. Gord Jones, of the Toronto traffic services division.

A specific figure was not provided, but State Farm Insurance said its losses alone amounted to $4 million.

"The victims of this crime are all of us who operate motor vehicles."
CHIEF BILL BLAIR

In these fraudulent accidents, police investigations would be started following accidents involving damage to vehicles. Reports would be generated, and then those involved would claim to be injured. They would seek the assistance of paralegals — some of whom are also accused — who would then file all the required paperwork with the insurance company.

Student charged in campus shooting

A first-year law student has been arrested after shots were fired in a dormitory Saturday morning at York University.

Police were called to 360 Assiniboine Rd., on the southern boundary of the campus, around 6:45 a.m.

Police said someone fired a shotgun at the door, causing projectiles to go through it and into the apartment. A female student was inside but didn't suffer any injuries.

During the investigation, police learned the occupant of the apartment had issues with the door and its lock.

"We believe that somebody was tampering with her door, but we don't know the reasons why," Det. Sgt. Al Coulter told a news conference Thursday.

"I would like to express my deep concern that the alleged suspect, a York student, so seriously compromised the safety of everyone at York," Mamdouh Shoukri, York president and vice-chancellor, said in a news release.

Andrew MacDonald, 35, is charged with three counts of mischief, two counts of attempted break-and-enter and five other weapons-related charges. Police seized a 12-gauge Remington 870 shotgun and a .22-calibre rifle along with a substantial number of rounds of ammunition for each gun.

Ford brothers to host radio show

Mayor Rob Ford and his outspoken brother Doug are taking over Newstalk 1010's The City radio program, which was previously hosted by Coun. Josh Matlow. The City airs Sundays from 1 to 3 p.m.

Ford mulls parking tax

Consultants estimate levy could bring in more than $90 million a year

For the first time since launching his subway crusade more than a year ago, Mayor Rob Ford has signalled he is willing to use modest taxation to pay for construction.

Specifically, he has indicated he is open to implementing a parking levy.

Exactly what Ford has in mind isn't clear, but members of his inner circle say what has been discussed is a per-space fee, which would be passed on to owners of large parking lots — malls and movie theatres, which typically offer free parking, as well as pay lots. For the latter, the added cost would probably be passed on to drivers.

Ideally, the strategy would be implemented across the GTA, so there isn't a situation where parking lots on the city limits struggle to compete.

"The best way to go is through development charges and TIFs (tax increment financing)" but parking levies are on the table, Ford told reporters Thursday morning. "You can't have a closed mind. All the options are there," he said, referencing Gordon Chong's report on ways to finance a Sheppard subway extension.

Reached Thursday, Chong said this was a great step.

"He's been pretty adamant about not raising taxes, fees, etc. … so this was a pleasant surprise," he said.

Ford's statements also came as a surprise to TTC chair Karen Stintz.

"The big question for Mayor Ford to answer is: How is he going to get his financing? It appears as if he is now wrestling with that question."

Until now, Ford has shied away from endorsing revenue tools to fund his subway vision.

Court hears vicious details of girl's murder

BRAMPTON. Milena Firgan held up well as she listened to evidence of how hundreds of drops of blood from her daughter Aleksandra were splashed in the bedroom of the man accused of killing her.

But she wept hard and alone when a nude black and white autopsy photo of her 13-year-old was shown on a courtroom screen, allowing the jury to study some of 37 stab wounds on her daughter.

Rafal LaSota and Michelle Liard are accused in the murder of Firgan-Hewie in December 2008.

Cop charged with murder for 2010 shooting

‘We’re appalled and shocked,’ says police union president of the charge

Eric Osawe, 26, died from a Toronto police officer’s bullet to the back two years ago, the lawyer for the victim’s family says.

Julian Falconer made the surprise revelation Thursday after a charge of second-degree murder was laid against Const. David Cavanagh, believed to be the first Toronto cop charged with murder while on duty. He had previously been charged with manslaughter.

“In terms of police accountability, there is very little doubt this is a historic day,” Falconer said. “It’s obviously a very solemn process.... It is by no means a day of celebration.”

An angry Toronto Police Association union president Mike McCormack called the murder charge “over the top,” saying there is no new evidence against the 35-year-old officer. “The Crown has had this case for two years. Nothing has changed,” he told reporters.

Osawe, a Nigerian-born father of two, was shot, and his younger brother, Ebony, 23, was arrested on weapons charges on Sept. 29, 2010, during a raid on an apartment on Dunbloor Road, near Kipling Avenue. The guns and gangs unit and emergency task force officers had stormed the unit at about 1:30 a.m.

Top marks for four-year degrees, survey shows

A majority of university students don’t like shorter, three-year degrees — and most take longer than the standard four years to complete a degree as it is, says a new study that comes just as an Ontario government paper suggests making four years of post-secondary education a thing of the past.

In Ontario, about 94 per cent of university students graduate with a four-year honours bachelor degree, the study found, but less than half had finished that degree in four years.

And among the 850-plus students surveyed, 64 per cent said four years has the most value, 29 per cent said the two degrees are of equal value, and five per cent felt the shorter bachelor degree was preferable.

The province is looking at reforming the post-secondary system. It has a discussion paper outlining ways to do so, including the shorter degree, year-round classes and allowing students to earn more than half of their credits online.

"The 2012 Camry Hybrid LE, with overall 4.7 L/100 km, is superior to the Kia/Hyundai/Ford hybrids, and the upgraded 2012 version will also wax the Fusion and Sonata Hybrid in a drag race."

- David Booth, The National Post

When we say that the all-new 2012 Toyota Camry Hybrid is the best choice in its class, we're saying it for good reason. As you'd expect from Toyota, its class-leading city fuel consumption rating of 4.5L/100km, combined fuel consumption rating of 4.7L/100KM and 2.5 Litre 200-horsepower engine give you both fuel savings and incredible off-the-line power. It also has 371 Litres of cargo space and standard 10 airbags – which is a lot more than the competition can say.

Crowd Wu-ed by fashion designer

Fashionistas flock for a piece of Jason Wu's collection at pop-up shop

CHRIS YOUNG/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ A customer peers around a changing room door as she tries on an outfit designed by Jason Wu at a Target pop-up shop in Toronto on Thursday.

At 9 a.m., there were already 30 people in line. And there was still three hours to go before the pop-up shop selling the Jason Wu collection would be open to the public.

David Page, 47, who works in finance, was first in line Thursday at 6:45 a.m. He was there to get his hands on a few items for his wife.

"She is a bit of a fashion girl. She loves Jason Wu and has some of his stuff," he says of his spouse who was out of town this week. He wanted to buy her the items as a surprise.

Security, dressed in red puffy jackets, patrolled the line and kept a head count.

One shopper who had stepped away to get coffee was questioned when she returned to her spot. Apparently the strict control was due to the fact that the first 25 people in line would be allowed in the shop 10 minutes earlier.

Rise to fame

▶ Gowns. Jason Wu, a New York-based designer who rose to fame when U.S. First Lady Michelle Obama wore one of his gowns to the Presidential Inauguration ball in 2009, collaborated with mass retailer Target for a limited edition collection of ladylike dresses, pretty bow-tied blouses, pleated skirts and cat print scarves with prices as low as $10.

Popular U.S. retailer Targets Torontonians

Since the first Target store in Canada would not be opening until 2013, this pop store that was only open for six hours, served as a sort of love letter to Toronto — judging from the huge red symbols (a bullseye, heart and maple leaf) at the location at the corner of King Street West and Blue Jays Way.

It also gave Toronto a taste of the popular retailer's low prices and savvy designer collaborations.

CHRIS YOUNG/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ Designer Jason Wu at a Target pop-up shop in Toronto on Thursday.

Inside the retail space — which used to be a condo showroom — Target's deep pockets were in evidence. Pop-up shops are typically barebone spaces with just racks of clothes. But this one redefined the concept with plush carpeting, chandeliers, windows painted to look like a stately mansion, and a VIP area with patent white sofas where a British bulldog — the Target mascot — and the designer himself held court.

"I wanted to translate my designs for a broader audience," said Wu, who spent some of his early years studying in Vancouver.

But it appears his simple shapes and pretty prints seem to have found favour with even those who can afford his more expensive main line — like the First Lady who was photographed wearing one of the $35 dresses from his Target collection.

Donation

▶ United Way. While the store might have only been open for six hours, there was a longer lasting and more far reaching effect. Target said they would donate an amount equal to 100 per cent of the sales of the Jason Wu for Target event to United Way Toronto.

T.O. woman helps save 30 lives

Resident took part in what became longest connection of kidney transplants constructed — Chain 124 Transplants involved 60 people

When Toronto realtor Josephine Bonventre discovered a distant cousin needed a transplant, she decided to donate a kidney.

But the relative, Cesare Bonventre of Brooklyn, N.Y., had antibodies that made the match less than ideal. He asked her to donate that kidney to a stranger, to enable him to get a better match from someone else.

And so Bonventre, 41, participated in an extensive chain of kidney transplants that was chronicled by the New York Times last week.

The domino chain of 30 transplants involving 60 people began with Californian Rick Ruzzamenti, who after hearing of someone who donated a kidney to an ailing friend, made a decision to donate too.

Four months, 17 hospitals and 11 U.S. states later, Donald C. Terry Jr. of Joliet, Ill., who had no one in his circle able or willing to donate, received the kidney that completed the chain.

The experience was life changing, Bonventre says almost three months after her cousin's transplant. "It's totally worth it."

Speedy surgery crucial for spinal injuries: Study

Neurosurgeon Dr. Michael Fehlings was asleep in bed at his High Park home two years ago when his pager went off. A patient with a serious spinal-cord injury was en route to Toronto Western Hospital and Fehlings was beckoned to perform emergency surgery.

As a study that Fehlings was working on at the time would later show, time was of the essence. The study, published online Thursday in the medical journal Plos ONE, reveals that patients who get surgery within 24 hours of suffering a spinal-cord injury have a 20 per cent improvement in their outcomes. Indeed, one in five could be walking away from paralysis.

In this case it had been 11 hours since Anastacia Espena had suffered a serious fall. Three days after the surgery, feeling began to return to the left side of her body. With ongoing physiotherapy, she is now learning to walk with a cane and even without any assistive devices at all.

TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Older method

▶ Prior to the study, the prevailing school of thought was to do surgery in a delayed fashion for fear of causing further injury to an already compromised spinal cord.

NDP to Tories: Come clean on dirty tricks

Conservatives pleaded guilty last year to topping campaign spending limit in 2006 Accused now of using 'robocalls' to mislead voters

SEAN KILPATRICK/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ NDP MP Charlie Angus makes a point in the House of Commons last Thursday. The opposition is comparing a pre-election "robocall" campaign by a Conservative-linked company to the Watergate scandal that toppled Richard Nixon.

Prime Minister Stephen Harper insists the Conservative party had nothing to do with a dirty-tricks campaign aimed at discouraging opposition supporters from voting in last spring's election.

But given his party's history of illegal or questionable campaign tactics, New Democrats and Liberals aren't buying it.

They say the latest revelations are more proof that the Conservatives have systematically subverted the democratic process in order to win elections.

They compared the matter to the notorious Watergate scandal that toppled U.S. President Richard Nixon.

New Democrat MP Pat Martin predicted the magnitude of the scam "will be enough to make Richard Nixon blush."

The opposition charges came Thursday after a company that did campaign work for Conservatives, including Harper, was linked to harassing or misleading automated phone calls received by voters in some 18 hotly contested ridings just before the May 2 election.

The robocalls falsely advised voters that Elections Canada had changed the location of their polling stations. In other instances, voters received harassing late-night or early-morning calls that purported to be from an opposition campaign office.

"Our party has no knowledge of these calls. They are not part of our campaign."
PRIME MINISTER STEPHEN HARPER

Edmonton-based Rack-Nine Inc. confirmed Thursday that its automated calling service was used to deliver the phoney messages and that Elections Canada and the police are investigating.

The RCMP refused to confirm or deny it is part of an investigation, but said it may work with government departments or agencies if it is asked.

For his part, Harper denied any knowledge of the scams.

"I have absolutely no knowledge on anything about these calls but, obviously, if there's anyone who has done anything wrong, we expect that they will face the full consequences of the law," he said during a visit to Iqaluit.

Conservative party campaign manager Jenni Byrne said her party "ran a clean and ethical campaign and would never tolerate such activity," though she left open the possibility that a rogue local party worker may have been involved.

But opposition parties scoffed at the notion of a rogue Tory acting independently in ridings from Nova Scotia to Manitoba.

They noted that whoever organized the calls had to have access to lists that identified each voter's party preference — typically only available to local and national party campaign headquarters.

No early end to rebates: Premier

PAWEL DWULIT/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ Dalton McGuinty

Ontario's cash-strapped government will not follow a recommendation to save $1.1 billion a year by eliminating the 10 per cent rebates on electricity bills earlier than planned, Premier Dalton McGuinty said Thursday.

The Liberals introduced the Clean Energy Benefit on Jan. 1, 2011, to offset the impact of the costs of rebuilding the aging power grid and of their green energy policies, both of which were sending hydro bills soaring.

Economist Don Drummond's report on reforming government services to eliminate the $16 billion deficit within five years recommended scrapping the electricity rebates "as quickly as possible."

But McGuinty said the rebates will stay in place for the full five years, as originally scheduled, to coincide with the time that the existing Debt Retirement Charge is finally eliminated from hydro bills.

"The advice as I interpret it is, 'Don't end it any later than you'd originally planned. If you can end it sooner, fine.'"
PREMIER DALTON MCGUINTY ON THE DRUMMOND REPORT ADVISE TO SCRAP ELECTRICITY REBATES

"We're rebuilding 80 per cent of our electricity system over the course of the next 20 years, thousands of megawatts of new generation, thousands of new kilometres of transmission lines," he said.

"There's a cost associated with that and we want to help families and businesses alike manage that."

POWER INSURANCE

Electricity too costly: Report

Ontarians are paying a premium of $1.5 billion a year to ensure there is enough power during occasional periods of peak demand, a consulting firm estimates. That translates into nearly one cent per kilowatt hour when spread over the total amount of power produced in Ontario each year.

Secor Energy Group says peak demand occurs only a few days a year, which means Ontarians are overpaying for electricity. It's like having an insurance policy for a steady supply of power, the firm says.

City sells Yorkville parking garage for a cool $76M

◗ Toronto Parking Authority received 10 offers ◗ Developer Minto chosen

What began as a City of Toronto surface parking lot in the mid-1950s and morphed into a 1,000-space parking garage in 1974 is being sold to a condo developer for $76 million.

Under a deal that goes to city council for approval March 5, Minto will pay $44 million in cash and build 800 spaces of underground Green P parking worth $32 million along with two condo towers on a key site in Yorkville.

"See, you should have invested in parking garages," quipped Coun. Peter Milczyn, chair of council's planning and growth management committee.

The site is between Yonge and Bay Streets, has frontage on both Cumberland and Yorkville Avenues, and is near the new Four Seasons hotel and condo complex.

"In a location like that, the land will always retain its value," Milczyn said.

The city will end up with the cash and there's no shortage of worthy projects to fund, Milczyn said.

"We have a backlog in road repairs, we have a backlog in parks and recreation repairs, and we have no money to complete the East Bayfront LRT, which is crucial to supporting development that's already happening on the waterfront," he said.

Texting leaving you at a loss for words?

'Constrained type of language'

- Lee believes that individuals who tend to text more are getting a lot more exposure to what she describes as "a constrained type of language."
- The predominant language of texting is colloquial. But in traditional media, the language presented is "characterized by professional writing," explained Lee.
- So those who read see "more variety of words and sentence structures which may help them," said Lee. By seeing more words and sentence structures, Lee believes they are able to tolerate or acknowledge new items as words even though they've never seen them before.

▶ A businesswoman on her smartphone.

U of Calgary study suggests text messaging has negative impact on ability to interpret, accept words

Writing and reading text messages narrows the use of language, according to a recent study conducted by a University of Calgary student for her masters in linguistics.

The study found that text messaging has a negative impact on linguistic ability to interpret and accept words. The results have raised eyebrows, especially since many academics had suggested texting encouraged unrestrained language.

"I was trying to identify whether there was a fundamental change in language as a result of texting," explained Joan Lee in a phone interview. Linguistics often looks at the boundaries of a language, and test word acceptability or tolerance, she added.

"I was interested in working on a problem that was of interest to the general public and could be accessible to everyone, even those who didn't know about linguistics."

So Lee decided to look at how texting affects word acceptability — whether or not a word is considered a real word in different languages. In this case, she used English.

She studied a group of 33 university students, all of whom spend time texting to some degree or another. But the amount varied widely. One person received 3,000 texts a month, while another in the group received two texts. The average in the sample of university students was 700 texts a month.

Lee also established how much the participants read what she described as traditional media, such as books and newspapers. Among the sample there was quite a range, she said.

Turns out that those individuals who tend to receive and send more text messages "were less accepting of items that were not really English words," Lee said. "The people who read more books were more accepting of all words, both fictitious and real."

Lee concludes that texting is changing the language of individuals or groups who text a lot.

"Their boundaries of what is acceptable in language are narrowing and getting smaller. They're only tolerating words that are more commonly known to them."

Feds dole out $27M for adult education in North

PM to boost employment skills for high school dropouts in Arctic ◐ Critics say more money needed

Prime Minister Stephen Harper flew to a frigid Iqaluit to deliver $27 million for adult education in the North, an attempt to help high-school dropouts qualify for jobs.

The money will be spread over five years, and shared by three colleges, one in each of the territories.

"By improving access to adult basic education, we are giving Northerners the tools they need to seek higher education and secure employment in sectors that contribute to Canada's economic growth," Harper said in a statement.

Part of the funding was announced in last June's budget, which put $9 million over two years to adult basic education. Thursday's announcement extends the funding time frame and increases the annual allotment slightly.

Harper has frequently stressed that education levels among aboriginal peoples need to improve if they are ever to find prosperity. But he is under intense pressure from native leaders to ante up serious money.

That pressure may have persuaded Harper to spend a day at a short news conference and a photo op on the ice at -26 C.

Back in the south, the Liberal aboriginal affairs critic called Harper's announcement paltry compared to the needs of the North.

"The prime minister's drive-by announcement today provided nowhere near the kind of resources for education, social housing, mental health, drug treatment and food security desperately needed in the north in order to improve the health, education and well-being of northern Canadians," MP Carolyn Bennett said in a release.

- The 2006 census suggests the level is about half that. Regardless, the graduation rate is drastically lower than that of the rest of the population.
- Nunavut Arctic College is receiving $11 million of the funding. Yukon College is getting $300,000 so far and can apply for more over the coming five years. And Aurora College is getting $620,000 with the potential for more.

Somalia on world agenda

'As an international community, it is in all our interests to try and help the Somali people' address their problems: British PM at London meeting

MATT DUNHAM/GETTY IMAGES

▶ British Prime Minister David Cameron talks to U.S. Secretary of State Hillary Clinton during the Somalia Conference at Lancaster House in London, Thursday.

Act now or pay the price, world leaders were warned Thursday in London at an international conference addressing the problems that have plagued Somalia for two decades.

"This is not just the largest gathering of countries and organizations that have ever come together to discuss the issues in Somalia, it's also the most influential," British Prime Minister David Cameron said in opening remarks.

"If the rest of us just sit back and look on, we will pay a price for doing so."

U.S. Secretary of State Hillary Clinton praised Wednesday's endorsement by the United Nations Security Council to increase the number of African Union (AU) troops in Somalia to almost 18,000. The AU troops, known as AMISOM, have propped up Somalia's Transitional Federal Government (TFG) and managed to expel the al-Qaida-linked Al Shabab from Mogadishu.

Al Shabab was mentioned in many addresses — highlighted as the major obstacle to Somalia's peace.

The media-savvy wing of the group issued its own statement Thursday, warning that the London conference was a gathering of Christian "crusaders" intent on dividing Somalia.

While Somalia's TFG leaders have advocated negotiations with Al Shabab, Clinton indicated that the U.S. would not support such talks.

Al Shabab controls much of Somalia's south, but the group is believed to be fractured along ideological lines with some members supporting the group's recent merger with al-Qaida, and others focused on a nationalistic, not global, agenda. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Higher insurance rates do not mean better coverage

Be aware of this myth when shopping for car insurance

Insurance companies charge different rates to insure the same driver, with the same car, for the same exact coverage. These rates can vary by hundreds, or even thousands, of dollars. Part of the reason is that each insurance company uses its own claims experience (how much money it has paid out in claims in a given timeframe) as a factor to determine the rates charged and because each company's experience is different, so are the rates they charge.

The other major factor is your individual driving profile which includes where you live, your age, the type of car you drive, your claims history, tickets, the annual mileage for your car, and so on. The combination of these factors helps insurance companies determine what rate or premium they will charge to insure a given car and driver.

The key to saving is to figure out which insurance company can offer you the best rate based on all factors. Chances are you may not be insured with the company that offers the best rate for your driving profile.

But finding the best rate on your own can be time consuming, right? Wrong. With online tools such as InsuranceHotline.com, searching for a better rate is fast, easy and free.

The perceived notion of "paying more for an item means it's better quality" does not apply to auto insurance. This is one of the most important factors to remember when shopping for insurance. Another important fact is that you can shop for insurance at any time. The truth is that your insurance company has no way of knowing if you are shopping around for a better rate. In fact, even if they did know you were checking out your options, you cannot be penalized in any way for trying to find a better deal.

Why pay more for something when you don't have to? You can save hundreds (even thousands) by shopping around for auto insurance. All without affecting your coverage. We've harnessed the search power of the internet to offer you choice. It's fast, FREE and easy to use, with absolutely no obligation. And when your current provider cries about it, you can tell them "too bad."

Obama apologizes for Qur'an burning

President Barack Obama apologized Thursday for the burning of copies of the Muslim holy book at a U.S. military base this week, as violent protests raging nationwide led a man dressed in an Afghan army uniform to kill two U.S. troops.

The Afghans' furious response to the Qur'an burning — three days of riots in several cities — reflected the anger at what they perceive as foreign forces' disrespect for Afghan laws and culture.

In a letter sent to Afghan President Hamid Karzai, Obama expressed his "regret and apologies over the incident in which religious materials were unintentionally mishandled," a White House spokesman said.

7 marines killed in night training exercise

- Crash follows several recent accidents involving marines in California
- Three killed in separate helicopter crashes at Camp Pendleton

Seven U.S. marines were killed when two helicopters collided in the California desert during night training exercises, the latest of several Marine Corps training accidents in the region.

"We're still gathering a lot of details as the sun comes up," said Lt. Maureen Dooley with the Miramar Air Base in California.

The crash happened around 8 p.m. Wednesday and involved an AH-1W Cobra that carried two crew members and a UH-1 Huey utility helicopter carrying five service members from the 3rd Marine Aircraft Wing.

It will be at least 24 hours before the marine corps releases the names of those killed.

▶ This undated image provided by the U.S. Marine Corps shows a UH-1 Huey helicopter. One of the two helicopters involved in the crash was similar to this one.

The aircraft collided in a remote portion of the Yuma Training Range Complex.

The U.S. military and its allies train in the hot, desert area ringed by mountains because the conditions are similar to Iraq.

The AH-1W is considered the marine corps' main attack helicopter. The UH-1Y is replacing the aging version of the Huey utility helicopter first used during the Vietnam War.

Drunk dad gets probation

Allowed nine-year-old daughter to drive van since he had been drinking

A U.S. man who allowed his nine-year-old daughter to drive him around because he had been drinking was sentenced Thursday to two years of probation.

Shawn Weimer pleaded guilty in December to second-degree child abuse and allowing an unlicensed minor to operate a motor vehicle. He pleaded guilty on the condition he'd receive no jail time.

Weimer was arrested Oct. 8 when police pulled over his van and found his daughter behind the wheel.

Weimer said he made a mistake in asking his daughter to drive, but that he had been thinking about how he used to drive at his family's farm and junkyard when he was her age.

The girl testified in November that her father had consumed half a bottle of whiskey that night and that she had agreed to drive but felt a "little scared." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Stepmom accused of running girl to death

ETOWAH COUNTY SHERIFF'S OFFICE/AP

▶ Savannah Hardin

An Alabama woman whose nine-year-old stepdaughter died after authorities say she was punished with a forced three-hour run gave birth on the same day she was arrested and charged with murder.

Etowah County District Attorney Jimmie Harp says Jessica Mae Hardin is under guard at a hospital after giving birth Wednesday.

Hardin and her mother-in-law, Joyce Hardin Garrard, were charged with murder in the death of Savannah Hardin.

Police say the nine-year-old girl was made to run non-stop for three hours as punishment for having eaten a chocolate bar.

Harp says his office is interviewing witnesses and may upgrade the charges to capital murder.

Harp says Savannah Hardin had a bladder condition and was not supposed to have the caffeine in chocolate.

Syria's supplies dwindle as fighting continues

SYRIA. Medics stitch wounds with thread used for clothing. Hungry residents risk Syrian government sniper fire or shelling to hunt for dwindling supplies of bread and canned food on the streets of the besieged city of Homs.

The opposition stronghold was being destroyed "inch by inch" by government forces while Western and Arab leaders hoped to silence the guns long enough to rush in relief aid.

Dozens killed in brazen city attack in Iraq

IRAQ. Bombs and deadly shootings relentlessly pounded Iraqis on Thursday, killing at least 55 people and wounding more than 225 in a widespread wave of violence the government called a "frantic attempt" by insurgents to prove the country will never be stable.

Cars burned, school desks were bloodied, bandaged victims lay in hospitals and pools of blood were left with the wounded on floors of bombed businesses after the daylong series of attacks in 12 cities across Iraq.

The assault showed how vulnerable the country remains two months after the American military withdrew from the country.

Minibus terminal attack in Pakistan kills a dozen

Blast rattles border town of Peshawar Car bomb was loaded with nearly 45 kilograms of explosives No group has claimed responsibility for deaths

Dilawar Khan's son had stopped off at his tea shop on his way back from school when a powerful car bomb exploded outside it. The 12-year-old was among the dozen killed in Thursday's blast in Peshawar, Pakistan, at a bus terminal for passengers wanting to travel to the lawless border regions with Afghanistan.

The explosion tore through a dozen vehicles waiting to transport passengers from the city of Peshawar to other areas of the country. Some of the minibuses were blackened and destroyed. There were 32 wounded, including women and children, officials said.

"God should destroy these terrorists."
45-YEAR-OLD SHOPKEEPER DILAWAR KAHN, AFTER LEARNING ONE OF HIS SONS DIED IN THE ATTACK

In the chaos, Khan initially thought his other son had been killed, but he turned up at home later.

"What have my sons done wrong," said the 45-year-old shopkeeper, beating his face with his hands.

Violence has dropped off in Peshawar and some other areas of Pakistan over the past year following offensives against the Pakistani Taliban in the northwest. But bombings and shootings still occur with regularity, especially in the border regions, and no one is predicting victory against the militants.

No group claimed responsibility for the blast. The dead included two children, including Khan's son.

Peshawar is located close to the Afghan border, the main sanctuary for Pakistani Taliban fighters at war with the government.

The car bomb was loaded with nearly 45 kilograms of explosives, city police chief Siraj Ahmed said. It's unclear why the bus terminal was targeted. Most militant attacks are aimed at security force or government targets, but markets and other public places have also been hit, presumably to create chaos and add to perceptions that the government is unable to provide basic security. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Other attacks

- A local government official says a time bomb has killed eight members of an anti-Taliban militia in northwest Pakistan.
- Tribal agency official Iqbal Khan says six more members of the militia were wounded in the Sunday incident in the Tirah valley of the Khyber tribal region.

Brit MP suspended following bar brawl

Bar where the incident took place one of several watering holes inside the renowned Parliament buildings

While visiting the Mother of all Parliaments in London, Canadian House of Commons Speaker Andrew Scheer just missed the mother of all punch-ups between two British MPs.

Scheer, who led a delegation this week to the British House of Commons, had left the Strangers Bar within the British Parliament before the dust started to fly between Labour MP Eric Joyce and Conservative MP Stuart Andrew.

"He left earlier and read about it in the paper like everyone else," Heather Bradley, a spokesperson for the Speaker's office in Ottawa, told the Toronto Star Thursday, adding that Scheer was on his way back to Ottawa.

According to reports, Joyce, the member for Falkirk, was overly refreshed and began shouting at Tory MPs, spilling his drink on some, before head-butting Andrew, the Tory MP for Pudsey. After punching a few more people, he head-butted Andrew a second time, witnesses told reporters there.

Labour said Joyce has been booted from the opposition party's parliamentary caucus until police finish investigating the one-man melee.

Hockey team under scrutiny at Boston U

Boston University is forming a task force to study the "culture and climate" of its men's hockey team after two players were arrested for allegedly assaulting female students this season.

In a letter sent to students, trustees and employees, BU president Robert Brown said the charges in the two cases "understandably lead to questions about whether the hockey team's culture and climate have contributed in some way to the actions of the two individuals."

In December, Corey Trivino, a leading goal scorer, was arrested on indecent assault and battery charges. Earlier this week, junior defenceman Max Nicastro was charged with raping a female student.

Both players have pleaded not guilty. They were both suspended from the team.

50 dead in train accident Government promises investigation

Argentina's deadliest train accident in decades was foreseeable and preventable, the nation's auditor general complained Thursday, saying there had been years of failed safety tests and other problems.

Rail-safety experts, meanwhile, said modern trains are built to withstand the kind of hard stop that killed 50 passengers and injured more than 700 in Buenos Aires Wednesday.

President Cristina Fernandez declared two days of mourning and sent at least four cabinet ministers out to give news conferences describing the government's response to the tragedy. None took questions.

Mubarak defiant in letter to court

Egypt's former President Hosni Mubarak told the court trying him for complicity in the killing of protesters during last year's uprising that he was saddened by what he called "baseless" claims against him and expressed confidence in the judicial system and history to clear his name.

Mubarak's remarks were made in a memo published in the Tahrir newspaper on Thursday, a day after the former president's defence lawyers delivered their closing remarks in a seven-month trial that has transfixed the nation.

In the letter, which filled three columns on the daily's front page, Mubarak, 83, struck a defiant tone, speaking in the third person and telling the court he has worked to defend his nation's honour and his people's blood.

"The unjust accusations and the baseless allegations I am facing sadden me. I am not someone who would shed his people's blood. I have spent my life defending them." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Foreigners returned to prison in Indonesia

Indonesian authorities trying to move foreigners, women and children out of a prison hit by two days of riots have returned 13 of them to the tense, overcrowded jail on the resort island of Bali.

The military said the evacuations were planned for the safety of inmates who could become hostages as tensions at the prison showed no signs of easing. Fourteen foreigners who had rejected being transferred were among 31 inmates initially moved out earlier in the evening.

The most famous foreign prisoner in the jail is Australian Schapelle Corby, a former beauty school student serving a 20-year sentence for smuggling 4.2 kilograms of marijuana into Bali. Her case garnered intense interest in Australia, where many people believe she was innocent. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The voice like Jagger?

Rolling Stones frontman says Barack Obama did 'very well' during impromptu blues session

The reviews are in, and Mick Jagger sizes up President Barack Obama's singing of the blues this week as nothing short of "courageous."

The Rolling Stones frontman said Thursday the president did "very well" when bluesman Buddy Guy successfully prodded him to join in on a few lines of Sweet Home Chicago, the blues anthem of the president's adopted home town, during a concert earlier in the week.

Jagger, Guy and other blues greats played the East Room on Tuesday as part of an "In Performance at the White House" concert that will air Monday on PBS.

"I thought he was courageous, because there was some element of reluctance," Jagger said, adding that "it was a hard moment for the president to get out of."

Jagger, in a phone interview, also said he was pleased to see that first lady Michelle Obama was wearing a dress that night designed by L'Wren Scott, his longtime girlfriend, who had a front-row seat for the concert.

Jagger, 68, said he had never been invited to play at the White House before, and he described it as a "surreal gig experience."

Ex-mistress gets hands on Edwards sex tape

The former mistress of John Edwards has won ownership of a sex tape she filmed with the former presidential candidate as he was running for the White House.

Rielle Hunter sued former Edwards aide Andrew Young and his wife in 2010 over the intimate tape and other personal items the couple claimed she abandoned. Hunter lived with the Youngs in 2007, while she was pregnant with Edwards' baby.

In a court settlement filed Thursday, the Youngs agreed to give up their claim on the property, which has been held in the vault of a North Carolina courthouse. The Youngs also agreed not to talk publically about the tape.

Canadians rely heavily on home value: B of C

- Central bank fears impact of a housing correction
- U.S.-style housing collapse not anticipated

Canadians are becoming increasingly vulnerable to a housing correction, exposing them to a perfect storm of high debt and falling assets, the Bank of Canada warns.

In a book of four research papers released Thursday, the bank suggests many Canadians have constructed their finances on a house of cards, with ever rising home values the key and vulnerable support.

Bank economists explain that home prices have risen sharply in the past dozen or so years along with debt, as households needed both bigger mortgages to buy homes and used equity from higher home values to finance other purchases.

"These facts are interrelated, since rising house prices can facilitate the accumulation of debt," the report notes. "Households therefore experience a significant shock if house prices were to reverse."

It adds that falling home prices could have a "relatively large impact on consumption" as equity disappears and the ability to borrow is diminished. It calculates that a 10 per cent drop in home prices could generate a one per cent decline in consumption.

TD Bank chief economist Craig Alexander says this is not unrealistic given that it is the over-valuation figure the International Monetary Fund gives for Canadian housing stock. Alexander himself believes it could be as much as 15 per cent.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bank on debt

- Household debt has risen as a percentage of income from 110 per cent in 1999 to 153 per cent presently.
- Debt to household equity has risen as well, even as home prices have soared.
- The central bank says this is due to growing incomes, super-low interest rates and unrealistic expectations that home values will keep rising.
- Of particular concern is that much of the debt increase is not mortgages, but loans secured by home equity, which Canadians spent on consumer items and home renovations.

RIM on top in Canada: Study

BlackBerry, not iPhone or Android, remains most popular smartphone

Call it the home-field advantage.

Research in Motion may be losing market share in the rest of the world, but the company's BlackBerry is still hanging on to the top spot in the Canadian smartphone market, according to a new study.

The study, from U.S.-based market-research firm comScore, found that BlackBerry had 32.6 per cent of the Canadian smartphone market in 2011, with Apple's iPhone in second at 31.2 per cent and phones using Google's Android operating system in third at 27.9 per cent. "Canada was the only smartphone market reported by comScore in which RIM still maintained the leading position," noted the report, which found nonetheless that BlackBerry lost six per cent market share over the last six months in Canada, most of it to Android.

Austerity cuts not for us: Flaherty

Ottawa will take a moderate approach to government cost-cutting in the budget instead of following in Europe's austerity-driven footsteps, Finance Minister Jim Flaherty said Thursday.

"We are not one of the countries, many of them in Europe, that have run up deficits for a long period of time, accumulated substantial debt and must really act dramatically," Flaherty said.

His comments seemingly run counter to signals of a painful, cost-slashing budget next month. Government departments and agencies have been ordered to cut spending by up to 10 per cent. Few details on cuts have been released.

THE METRO LIST

MIKE BENHAIM
METRO

1 Priorities: Even in recession, our society manages to fund organizations like the Kinsey Institute's Condom Use Research Team (CURT). The Journal of Sexual Health recently published research that states, "Condom misuse is an epidemic." Kinsey's Richard Crosby went so far as to say, "We underestimate how complicated condom use can be." Really? Have we tried funding an organization that prevents dummies from having sex?

2 Roll up the RIM: This week RIM announced the launch of its BlackBerry PlayBook OS 2.0. It includes many things that should have been on the original, but they are still slightly behind their competitors, primarily pertaining to apps. My thought? How about an app that teaches people how to use a condom?

3 Sorry Charlie: Charlie Sheen wrote a letter to Ashton Kutcher, apologizing for recent "disrespectful" comments. Sheen's management stated, "Why is anyone still listening to Charlie?"

4 Auto child: Toronto couple Robbie and Esther Stern gave birth to a baby boy in the front seat of their Dodge Avenger. What happens now? Do they get free Dodges for life? Is the kid automatically born with a driver's licence? Free gas? Either way, it'll make a great ad: "Dodge Avenger: From one generation to the next!"

5 Wise-guy witness: After years of suspicion that organized-crime groups were controlling public-works contracts in Quebec, an inquiry has finally been launched. Now Quebec is asking the public to help gather evidence via anonymous email or toll-free phone calls. In unrelated news, the Canadian government has cut funding to the witness-protection program.

6 Dating for dummies: Canada is on the reality-show bandwagon: Canada's Got Talent airs next week, and auditions for The Bachelor Canada are underway. Next, I suggest a combo show wherein the bachelor actually chooses his companion based on her talent. Women can juggle, dance or sing (my money's on the contortionist). Hey, maybe they can finally find a partner for Susan Boyle.

7 Poetic justice: A fugitive, who had been convicted of 12 counts of sexual misconduct with a minor and who had appeared on America's Most Wanted, was arrested in Montreal upon returning from Venezuela. He lived in Vancouver for 10 years under an assumed Canadian identity. With a 169-year sentence looming, he probably felt he should take time off to travel. Let's hope he's imprisoned alongside other most-wanted criminals. That's something I'd pay to see.

8 Academy Awards: A word of advice for the Oscars. If you win the award for best short film, please ensure your speech is shorter than the actual project.

9 Here's lookin' at you, Kid: Native Montrealers lost an icon last week when Gary (The Kid) Carter passed away at age 57. In 2003 he became the first player to enter the Baseball Hall of Fame as an Expo. The bond between Carter and Montreal was so strong that, even after playing for three other teams, he returned for one final season in 1992. He will be dearly remembered, and forever missed. RIP.

Hippie hilarity

Wanderlust is the funniest movie since Bridesmaids, says Richard Crouse

The cast and script bring a freshness to the hippie satire

Reel Guys

RICHARD CROUSE & MARK BRESLIN

Richard: Mark, Wanderlust is something we haven't seen for a while — a Jennifer Aniston movie that doesn't stink. In fact, it's really good. Great supporting cast, loads of laughs and a great hallucination scene. The only thing that stinks is the hippie hygiene. What did you think?

MB: Ah, but most Paul Rudd movies are pretty good. He has a great track record of choosing good scripts, and Aniston had the good sense to attach herself to it. This is really one of the funniest movies I've seen in a long time. I started laughing at the opening scene in the realtor's office and didn't stop for 90 minutes. It's smart, well-cast, timely, and I can't find any flaws. If you liked writer/director David Wain's offbeat, loopy work in The State or Wet Hot American Summer, you're going to love this picture.

RC: Agreed. I haven't laughed like that in a movie since Bridesmaids last year. Rudd dies a mirror pep talk scene that is raunchy, funny and kind of surreal. Speaking of surreal, the hallucination sequence is trippy and hilarious. I've seen loads of drug scenes in movies but this one made me feel high ... with laughter.

MB: The film feels like Martha Marcy May Marlene reimagined as a comedy with, yes, a Bridesmaids spirit. It's been a long while since we've seen a hippie commune satire, and it's long overdue. So much to like here — Alan Alda's acid-head paterfamilias, Malin Ackermann's love goddess, the nudist writer/winemaker, the boorish brother, his neglected trophy wife, and Justin Theroux as the cult leader lost in the '90s.

RC: I think the reason the movie works so well, aside from the very funny script, is that each of the characters you mentioned could have been the focus of the story and it still would have been a good movie. There isn't a character in the movie that feels extraneous. Also, I loved the uber hippie jokes. Where else would you find a placenta as soup stock joke?

MB: Saturday Night Live had a 'placenta helper' mock commercial some time ago that was heavily censored. But you're right – the movie gets the details right. It's an ayahuasca ceremony that they take part in, peyote being so ... 2003. And maybe that's the thrill of finally seeing Ms. Aniston in a comedy that's not only funny but original as well. She's been performing for focus groups far too long. Wanderlust may be a Hollywood movie, but it has an indie sensibility.

Alliance Films says the City of Toronto has removed 38 Goon posters ahead of the hockey movie's release Friday. A spokeswoman for Alliance says the outdoor ads feature Goon star Jay Baruchel "gesturing in a way that the city believes is inappropriate." The poster in question reportedly featured Baruchel making a sexually suggestive sign with his tongue and fingers.

Movie reviews

Act of Valor
Genre: Action
Directors: Mike McCoy, Scott Waugh
Stars: Alex Veadov, Roselyn Sanchez
●●½
There's something simultaneously startling and uncomfortable about watching real-life Navy SEALS starring in a fictional action film based on their professional exploits: at times, Act of Valor feels like the live-action equivalent of a kid slamming his GI Joes together. The film is relatively well-made around its strange gimmick, and if it's unusually jingoistic by the standards of most post Iraq-war blockbusters, that's the whole idea: faulting the filmmakers for heroizing their subjects is sort of missing the point.
● ADAM NAYMAN

Good Deeds
Genre: Comedy/Romance
Director: Tyler Perry
Stars: Tyler Perry, Gabrielle Union, Thandie Newton
●
Good Deeds will make you laugh, but you'll be laughing at it rather than with it. It may also make you cry, but they will be tears of frustration at a story so predictable it makes the See Spot Run books seem complex by comparison. Director Tyler Perry is not doing audiences a good deed by releasing his latest film, Good Deeds, in general release. The melodramatic story of a rich man (Tyler Perry) who learns about love and life from a woman (Thandie Newton) who works for him isn't just a bad movie, it's what I call a 'seatbelt movie;' a film so bad you'll need a seatbelt to keep you from walking out halfway through.
● RICHARD CROUSE

Sholem Aleichem: Laughing in the Darkness
Genre: Documentary
Director: Joseph Dorman
Stars: Rachel Dratch, Hillel Halkin
●●●
Sholem Aleichem was a hugely influential Russian-born writer who's most recognizable character became the basis of Fiddler on the Roof. Laughing in the Darkness is a devoted documentary but overuse of broad archival footage, and academic discourse, keeps a sluggish pace. ● STEVE GOW

Goon
Genre: Comedy
Director: Mike Dowse
Stars: Seann William Scott, Jay Baruchel, Allison Pill
●●●●
Mike Dowse's mighty hockey comedy splits the difference between Slapshot (gory rink violence) and the director's previous Fubar films (well-meaning boneheads trying their best not so screw up). Seann William's performance as a bouncer-turned-enforcer is a beautiful balance of guilelessness and thuggery, and the script gives him and the other actors plenty of space to breathe while still squarely hitting the necessary sports-flick beats.
● ADAM NAYMAN

Flowers of War
Genre: Drama
Director: Yimou Zhang
Stars: Christian Bale, Ni Ni, Xinyi Zhang
●●●
Christian Bale finds himself trapped in a convent during the Japanese rape of Nanking during the Second World War. An opportunistic American mortician, he finds himself posing as the priest, taking responsibility for the convent's schoolgirls and a group of prostitutes who seek refuge while staving off Japanese soldiers. Bale's presence is distracting given the Chinese cast, but he plays his part well. However the film's alternating tone, between mellow drama and brutal reality, distracts from this historical story.

Rampart
Genre: Crime
Director: Oren Moverman
Stars: Woody Harrelson, Ben Foster, Sigourney Weaver
⊕⊕⊕½
Like so many movies released in the last year, Rampart is a so-so movie dominated by a performance by its lead star. Woody Harrelson is Dave Brown an amoral LAPD cop with a drinking problem, a complicated love life and a huge legal problem. Set just a few years after the Rodney King beatings, Brown's life is turned upside down when he is videotaped beating a suspect. With the release of Rampart, Harrelson proves himself to be one of the most versatile actors working today. From comedy to drama, he can do it all, and in Rampart he transcends the material, delivering a powerful, compelling performance. RICHARD CROUSE

The Prodigies
Genre: Animation
Director: Antoine Charreyron
Stars: Jeffrey Evan Thomas, Lauren Ashley Carter, Moon Dailly
⊕⊕½
The Prodigies was received with sneers at Cannes last year, but its sour reputation isn't entirely deserved. A French computer animated sci-fi thriller geared towards young adults, the film's most glaring flaw is that it doesn't really know what its market is. The film is far too violent for kids (rape and decapitation are featured prominently) and the simplistic narrative is too goofy and familiar for more sophisticated audiences. CHRIS ALEXANDER

Doppelganger Paul (Or a film about how much I hate myself)
Genre: Dark Comedy
Directors: Dylan Akio Smith, Kris Elgstrand
Stars: Tygh Runyan, Brad Dryborough
⊕⊕⊕
Following a near death experience involving an energy drink, Karl (Runyan), a lonely trust-fund baby who spends his days writing a 20,000 page manuscript about how much he hates himself, becomes obsessed with Paul (Dryborough), a shaggy-haired machinist he meets on the street. Despite the glaringly obvious fact that the two bear no physical resemblance to one another, Karl is convinced that Paul is his doppelgänger — and he sets out to prove this to him. When the two finally meet, a series of absurd and hilarious events unfold, which force the duo on a bizarre quest.

This is an original, weird and wonderful film that will make you laugh and get you talking about two of the quirkiest characters on screen this year. REGAN REID

Donovan's Echo
Genre: Crime
Director: Jim Cliffe
Stars: Bruce Greenwood, Danny Glover
⊕⊕½
Donovan Matheson returns home after a 30-year absence and becomes convinced that a little girl is in danger. A supernatural murder mystery and strong performances carry the film's slow pace. Donovan's Echo will test the patience of viewers who prefer more realistic fare. IAN GORMELY

Snow
Genre: Drama
Director: Rohan Fernando
Stars: Kalista Zackhariyas, Ria Mae, Mohan Fernando
⊕½
When Parvati (Zackhariyas) loses her family in the 2004 tsunami, the 24-year-old Sri Lankan is forced to start a new life in Canada. Haunted by her loss, Parvati struggles to move forward in a strange country with relatives she's never met. Though this new family insists that she is "home," Parvati must discover a sense of place on her own. Though writer/director Rohan Fernando endeavours to tell a story about loss and displacement, the film does not engage the audience and ultimately doesn't live up to its subject matter. REGAN REID

It's party time

Project X director talks about his own days of partying Filming a bender isn't as fun as it seems

NED EHRBAR
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN HOLLYWOOD

When I sit down to talk to British director Nima Nourizadeh at the W Hotel in Hollywood, there's a tray full of liquor bottles and martini-making tools on the table between us. It's not even 10 in the morning. "Do you want a drink?" he offers, before joking, "This is the second tray they've brought me, by the way. I've already had one." That sense of humour makes him a perfect fit for Project X, his directorial debut, about a teenage house party that gets beyond out of control.

This movie looked like a lot of fun to make for the actors but a nightmare for the director.
I mean, honestly, it was one of the most challenging things that I've ever done. We had a short amount of time to shoot quite an insane movie. But it was like this controlled chaos, you know? It was a lot of fun, but you hit an age where you're just like, after one night of partying you just want to chill and watch TV. And for me it was like I had to keep the energy up for four and a half weeks of night shoots.

That'll certainly take a toll on you.
Oh, it did, it did. I had to stay in that schedule at the weekends as well. It was really quite an isolating experience for me. I came out here [from London] to shoot the movie, and for the time being I'm still here. I actually came out here to have a meeting, and I thought I'd be out here for a couple of weeks, and I never went back. Can you believe that? I didn't even have a send-off!

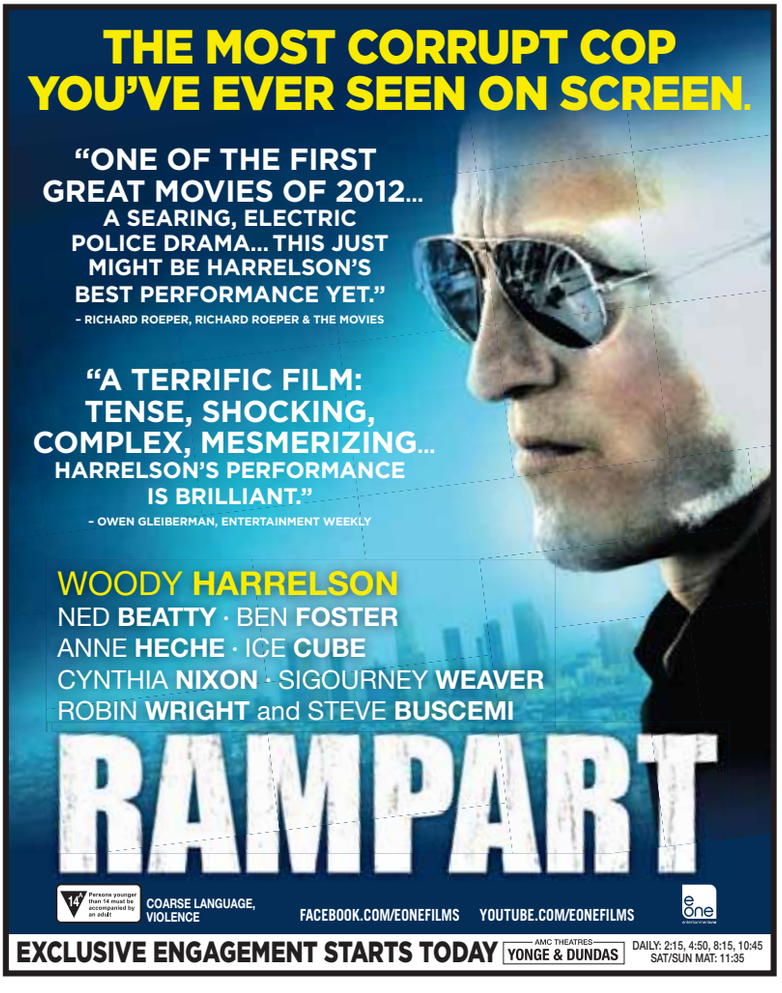
So how does the movie match up to your own party experiences?
I don't even know if I can even talk about it. (laughs) My party experiences tend to be I have an amazing time, and then I wake up. I literally wake up and I'm still at the party and no one else is there. That's happened to me loads of times, actually. And then you hear about what happened in that time period. Actually, that sounds a bit like the Hangover. (laughs) It's like people texting you and you're like, "Oh s—, that didn't happen, did it?"

HANDOUT

▶ Project X opens next Friday.

Was there any concern about pulling back on content to get the R rating?
Me less than maybe the producers knew what we could and couldn't get away with. And on top of that we've got this realistic approach to the movie, so we have to touch on some things that maybe normally you wouldn't, like the drug use, some of the sex. I just wanted to do as much as possible, and I felt like kids today have seen so many things. It wasn't like when I was growing up — you had to get a VHS and that was the only way you would see some of this stuff. We didn't have the Internet. If you wanted to see some boobs you had to maybe watch a movie that was rated R. I just think this kind of material is so much more accessible to kids right now that it probably won't seem as outrageous to them as it does to someone my age.

Yet there's no cigarette smoking in the movie, from what I could see.
You might actually see one. (laughs) No no no. I'm not sure if it was a conscious thing or not, but we just never really wanted to show it. Like, there's nothing really glamorous about it — I'm not saying that everything else is glamorous, but there was no value in having any cigarettes. I don't think anyone was missing out on seeing a cigarette being smoked in the film. There was too many other things to keep your eye on."



Baron Cohen gets warning from Oscars

METRO WORLD NEWS IN NEW YORK

Comedian Sacha Baron Cohen can only show up to the Oscars on Sunday if he promises not to come dressed as General Aladee, the main character of his soon-to-be-released movie The Dictator.

The actor's tickets to the award show were pulled after the Academy got wind of Cohen's plan to show up on the red carpet decked out as Aladee, who may or may not be modeled after Muammar Gaddafi, the former ruler of Libya who was run out of his position in a civil war and killed by opposition fighters in August 2011. As Deadline reports, Cohen, who is an Academy member and one of the stars of Hugo (which is a Best Picture contender), was told he cannot attend the 84th annual Academy Awards.

However, after a bit of backlash, the Academy then said Cohen could come if, and only if, he promises not to show up in costume or promote The Dictator on the red carpet.

"We would love to have Sacha Baron Cohen at the Oscar show," an Academy spokesperson told CNN. "We have expressed [to Cohen] that we don't like our red carpet to be used as a promotional stunt. We're waiting to hear from him. We've put the ball in his court."

ACADEMY AWARDS SPOKESPERSON

Knowing Cohen, this is just the type of scenario he'd love, so we're anxiously awaiting to see how he turns this awkward situation into a hilarious stunt for another upcoming movie.

Meanwhile, all the publicity is no doubt sparking plenty of interest in said film.

Being Elmo

Baltimore became the puppeteer behind one of Sesame Street's most beloved characters

Kevin Clash is not a monster. He has simply lent his voice and movement to one for the past 20 years.

In Being Elmo, which opens next Friday, viewers get to meet the man behind one of Sesame Street's most beloved furry creatures. And what a unique man he is, with an against-the-odds back story as a teenage outcast in Baltimore with a passion for puppets. But that all turned around when Clash got a local gig on a morning TV show, which led to him meeting the puppeteers in Jim Henson's circle. Being Elmo footage captures this precious moment in time like a fly on the wall, but it raises the question of how anybody knew to have a fly there. "That's the question that everybody asks for every film festival we go to," says Clash.

In fact, the film comes from a PBS-syndicated show called Big Blue Marble that aired in the '70s. "We were very lucky that we got that footage, because there's a lot in there about what I was doing at the age of 17," he says.

"I had about five or six voices that I was comfortable with; and when I saw Elmo, that was the voice that I thought would be right for him."
KEVIN CLASH

Being Elmo is also full of little-known tidbits, like the fact that Elmo originally spoke like a caveman. "Two puppeteers only did a couple of shows before they stopped performing the character, so nobody really got to know Elmo," says Clash.

"I had about five or six voices that I was comfortable with; and when I saw Elmo, that was the voice that I thought would be right for him."

Keeping it clean

Though Elmo may be a monster, Clash says the character never swears. Not even when the cameras aren't rolling.

- "We know what these characters represent, even if we don't have kids around," he says.

HANDOUT

▶ Sacha Baron Cohen as General Aladee.

The Dictator

Is slated to be released on May 11.

- Stars: Sacha Baron Cohen, Anna Faris and John C. Reilly.
- Plot: The film follows a 'heroic' dictator who willingly risks his life to ensure that democracy doesn't come to his beloved nation.

New film pushes Mark Ronson, DJ Premier outside of their comfort zones

METRO WORLD NEWS IN BOSTON

It’s not easy to throw Mark Ronson for a loop. Having produced such varied acts as Amy Winehouse, Duran Duran and Nas, he was eager to get involved in a fish-out-of-water musical experience like Re:Generation, the new film which pairs producers with unlikely musicians.

“I came from being a hip-hop DJ in New York, starting off in the ’90s and that’s what you did, you brought genres together,” says Ronson. “That has always appealed to me.”

For his part, Ronson brings one of his favourite backing bands, the Dap-Kings, to New Orleans to create a jazz song with Erykah Badu, Trombone Shorty, Mos Def and drummer Joseph (Zigaboo) Modeliste.

“We were all pretty much just going into it with Zigaboo as a complete hero of all of ours,” says Ronson. “The way he plays drums and his drum breaks from the early Meters stuff are pretty much the DNA of hip-hop and funk, and we were all excited beyond belief to play with him. And he still plays and sounds like he did on those records that we grew up listening to!”

Elsewhere in the film, DJ Premier (Preem) visits Boston to work with the Berklee Symphony Orchestra, Skrillex works with the surviving members of The Doors in Los Angeles, The Crystal Method go to Detroit to work with Martha Reeves of the Vandellas and the Funk Brothers, while Pretty Lights struggles to create something country with LeAnn Rimes and Dr. Ralph Stanley.

“I saw it in the trailer that there’s a little tension and some serious culture and generational gaps going on, and I’m a little bit concerned that our thing is going to seem a bit boring,” says Ronson, whose composition really does seem to come together quite organically. He says a key to the kinship was hanging out.

“We all just learned a lot and had a great time down in New Orleans,” he says. “We went to this kind of alternative scene bar where like 80 per cent of the dudes had full face tattoos and they were playing this music called bounce, and we just absorbed all of New Orleans, not just its traditional culture.”

Premier premieres

DJ Premier may have had the assignment that was least similar to what he regularly does. The hip-hop producer, known for his work with rappers like Snoop Dogg and Kanye West, had to create a piece of classical music.

“I really enjoyed having the chance to learn something new,” says Premier. Granted access to classical greats, Preem sampled various composers to piece his ideas together. Then he collaborated with Berklee professor Stephen Webber, who transcribed the samples into written music.

“Working with everyone on this was just dope,” says Premier.

Even cartoons need their Cons

The Gorillaz are back Check out the cartoon band's new sound and kicks with the one and only: Converse

RICHARD PECKETT

METRO WORLD NEWS IN LONDON

The Converse and Gorillaz sneaker collaboration hits stores this week. But it's no eye-rolling music-meets-fashion collaboration.

The cartoon band — led by lead singer Damon Albarn — employed the help of their art and video director Jamie Hewlett, a smart move judging by his epic videos.

There's a fresh sound too, thanks to the Converse Three Artists One Song, titled DoYaThing featuring Gorillaz, James Murphy and Outkast's Andre 3000, which is available to download from converse.com. (The band's collection of singles is also out now.)

Here's a taste of what to expect with the help of band member Murdoc.

The cartoon band Gorillaz

Get the look

The Cons come in a camo-print, military-insignia motif, complete with cartoon Pazuzu character and a collage of graffiti-style album artwork.

But here's a word of advice from band member Murdoc: "I think they need to be worn in a bit, to give them that skuzzy feel." So true, no wannabe hipster wants to rock up in shiny new shoes — you'll be bullied.

The music

It's a mash-up of the entire Gorillaz back catalogue — but don't worry, it doesn't get messy. The band's bassist says: "It's hip-hop, it's funk, it's rock, it rolls — it's got it all. It does its thing, y'know." Yep, thanks for that, mate.

Ten years, four shoes

So, just how did the guys decide which designs would make the four shoes cut? Well, Murdoc keeps it simple, saying: "It's always been four pairs of shoes. Me, Russel, Noodle and ... 2D. But the whole history of this band has been just four pairs of shoes." There you have it — another lucid explanation from the Gorillaz spokesman.

THE FUTURE OF THE REUNION MEGATOUR

SOUND CHECK

ALAN CROSS
SCENE
@METRONEWS.CA

The music industry has been lousy at creating new legendary acts over the last dozen years.

Outside of Jack White and Coldplay, try to name more rock acts that emerged from the 2000's that have turned into old-school global rock 'n' roll superstars with long careers still ahead of them.

This has contributed to two things: Megatours by legacy artists (U2, Madonna, Rush, the Rolling Stones) and the explosion in reunions.

Ever since Michael Cohn and Arthur Fogel — the two Canadians who invented the megatour when they convinced the Rolling Stones to get back together for the Steel Wheels roadtrip in 1989 — there's been an ever-increasing amount of money to be made in getting the band back together.

Unlike newer acts, these productions can fill arenas and stadiums. And when all the receipts are counted, everybody makes a LOT of money.

No wonder promoters are willing to drop their pants to put together insanely huge offers for reunion tours.

But this well is starting to run dry as age takes its toll on the older and most profitable legacy acts. Black Sabbath (collective age: 252) had to cancel its 2012 reunion tour over Tony Iommi's health issues, leaving a potential gross of $170 million on the table.

The Rolling Stones (collective age: 270) probably have one last tour in them. The Beach Boys — or what's left of them (collective age: 340) — will do this 50th anniversary tour and then perhaps pack it in.

This means there's more pressure for younger defunct acts to get it together again. Soundgarden, Jane's Addiction, Stone Roses and the Happy Mondays caved. The Van Halen brothers finally agreed to tolerate David Lee Roth for a little while.

Even cult-y acts like At the Drive-In, Jesus and Mary Chain and My Bloody Valentine have jumped aboard this train.

How much money would someone be willing to pay The Smiths for them to get back together? Or better yet, how much money is there in a reunion of Appetite for Destruction-era Guns 'N Roses? If the Police grossed $350 million, what are the Gunners worth? $500 million? More?

Bottom line: I can see a GnR reunion in the near future. If not in 2012, then in 2013. There's just too much money on the line for everyone involved.

Unlike most newer acts, legacy artists can fill arenas and stadiums — and everybody makes a lot of money.

Big love for Mike & Molly

11 million fans are tuning in to sitcom about a working-class couple ◆ Show airs Mondays on CTV

It's a birthday for Mike Biggs, the goodhearted, heavyset hero of Mike & Molly, and Molly Flynn, his plus-size love, presents him with the cake.

"Make a wish," she says, to which he replies, "I don't need to. I already got everything I want."

A little bit sappy? Not this show, insists Billy Gardell, who co-stars with Melissa McCarthy in the hit CBS comedy.

"Mike & Molly," he says, exists "in a world where we don't just say a snarky line, make a crazy face, and walk out of the room. There's actually some tender moments here, too."

Most viewers also occupy this world, and an average weekly audience of 11 million fans clearly identify with Mike & Molly, making it a Top 20 fixture in its sophomore season.

The title characters are a working-class Chicago couple who met at an Overeaters Anonymous meeting. Stories deal with tight budgets and work-a-day jobs (he's a cop, she's a fourth-grade schoolteacher), their exasperating families, and the ups and downs of their romance and impending marriage.

As Mike struggles to shed a few pounds (a relatable issue to viewers, fat or thin), the show doesn't shy from wisecracks about the lovers' generous waistlines.

"Everybody always asks me, 'Does it bother you about the fat jokes?'" says Gardell during a recent interview. "At the beginning, we had to address that issue, because we're a show in a world of shows where everybody's perfect — and we're not! But as the show went on, it has become more about the love story."

When the writing takes a sensitive turn, the co-stars make the most of it. McCarthy, previously known from The Gilmore Girls and

Becoming Mike

Gardell, whose TV credits include Yes, Dear and My Name is Earl, is a veteran standup comic with an easygoing earnestness.

- Twist of fate: "It was the last audition of pilot season for me," says Gardell, thinking back just two short years ago as he braced to leave Los Angeles for a possible radio gig in the Midwest.
- Getting off the road: He was aiming to cut down on his 42-weeks-a-year touring schedule as a comic. It had begun to wear him down as he approached age 40, with a wife and a young son he seldom saw.
- Grateful: "For every guy like me, there's 20 guys who put the time in and have the talent that didn't get the break," he says. "As a comic, I've heard gunshots while I'm trying to get to sleep... Now I always tell my castmates when something seems to go wrong, 'I've been in real trouble, and THIS ain't it!'"

The X Factor is hiring

Cowell wants 2 female judges, 2 hosts for singing contest's new season

Simon Cowell is playing it coy about rumours that Fergie, Britney Spears and Janet Jackson are being considered for The X Factor.

Two judges' spots on the Fox TV singing contest opened up when Paula Abdul and Nicole Scherzinger left after the first season. Cowell told a teleconference Wednesday that two women will replace them, but he declined to comment on who's being considered.

"There's been a load of speculation, some true, some not true," Cowell said. He added that he waited to see who was interested enough to ask about joining the show before focusing on the search.

Meetings will be held over the next few weeks with "a number of people," Cowell said, primarily to make it clear to contenders how much of a time commitment X Factor represents.

He didn't shed much light on the departures of Abdul and Scherzinger, saying only that shows evolve and "this time it was decided to do it sooner or later."

He said the two have been "incredibly gracious and respectful" and he's looking forward to working with them again.

With host Steve Jones' exit, Cowell said he wants to switch to a two-host format that would better suit the show and the amount of information that needs to be explained, entertainingly, to viewers.

He didn't say who might be hired but said they could be people who don't have "host" on their resumé.

He's not looking far for new judges and emcees, Cowell indicated, saying, "it's important we have more Americans on the show."

Cowell, who's a judge on the Fox show he based on his hit British series, is English. Jones is Welsh. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Oscars: Who will win, and should

While the Academy has finished voting and the Oscar winners are all but decided, we thought we'd give some experts one last chance to weigh in on the year's best

CONTRIBUTED

▶ The Artist looks like a favourite to collect some serious hardware on Oscar night.

Alonso Duralde, theWrap.com

BEST PICTURE

Will win: The Artist. It's a feel-good movie that, beyond being silent and black-and-white, plays it pretty safe, and it's got the Weinstein machine behind it.

Should win: The Descendants. When people look back at this period of filmmaking decades from now, the humanity and the wit of Alexander Payne's movies will continue to resonate.

Should have been nominated: I know that movies like Weekend or Attack the Block would never in a million years get the nod from Oscar, so I'll go with Tinker Tailor Soldier Spy.

BEST DIRECTOR

Will win: Michel Haznavicius (The Artist), more as part of the sweep for The Artist than out of a collective love of the OSS 117 series.

Should win: Alexander Payne, The Descendants.

Should have been nominated: Bennett Miller, for making Moneyball so fascinating to non-sports fans like me.

BEST ACTOR

Will win: Jean Dujardin (The Artist). He's way more appealing than Roberto Benigni, but if he wins, he'll be lumped together with him for all eternity.

Should win: All of these performances are great in their own way, but I'd love to see Gary Oldman get it, both for making such small choices resonate so deeply in Tinker Tailor Soldier Spy and as a tribute to 25 years of unpredictable work.

Should have been nominated: Steve Coogan in The Trip. Playing "yourself" is tricky business, and he makes his obnoxious on-screen alter ego eminently watchable.

BEST ACTRESS

Will win: Viola Davis (The Help), who gives an extraordinary performance in the service of a toxic movie.

Should win: Davis, if only for having the role that relies the least on prosthetics/makeup/costume.

Should have been nominated: Vera Farmiga, for her luminous work as a woman who begins to question her commitment to her faith in the wonderful and little-seen Higher Ground, which she also directed.

Kyle Buchanan, Vulture

BEST PICTURE

Will win: The Artist.

Should win: Moneyball.

Should have been nominated: Drive.

BEST DIRECTOR

Will win: Michel Hazanavicius, The Artist.

Should win: Either Woody Allen (Midnight in Paris) or Terrence Malick (Tree of Life), simply because they won't show up and the lack of a speech will help bring the show in on time.

Should have been nominated: Bennett Miller, Moneyball.

BEST ACTOR

Will win: Jean Dujardin, The Artist.

Should win: Brad Pitt, Moneyball.

Should have been nominated: Michael Shannon, Take Shelter.

BEST ACTRESS

Will win: Viola Davis, The Help.

Should win: Viola Davis, The Help.

Should have been nominated: Kristen Wiig, Bridesmaids.

Ned Ehrbar, Metro World News

BEST PICTURE

Will win: The Artist, a decent tribute to the history of film, but too light for my tastes.

Should win: Hugo, a much more inventive tribute to the history of film.

Should have been nominated: Shame, by far one the best — and most depressing — films of the year.

BEST DIRECTOR

Will win: Michel Hazanavicius, The Artist.

Should win: Martin Scorsese, Hugo.

Should have been nominated: David Fincher, Girl with the Dragon Tattoo.

BEST ACTOR

Will win: Jean Dujardin, The Artist

Should win: Gary Oldman, Tinker Tailor Soldier Spy.

Should have been nominated: Michael Fassbender, Shame.

BEST ACTRESS

Will win: Meryl Streep, The Iron Lady.

Should win: Streep, because really, it's time. And she made Margaret Thatcher human.

Should have been nominated: Tilda Swinton, We Need to Talk About Kevin.

Gazing into the future

It's been a long and exhausting awards season, so before the awards are even handed out, let's move on to next year. Here are some random, completely unfounded predictions for next year's Oscars:

BEST PICTURE:
Life of Pi. Ang Lee taking on a best-selling novel about a boy and a bunch of animals lost at sea? Can't lose.

BEST ACTOR:
Daniel Day-Lewis, Lincoln. The award-winning — and notoriously picky — actor taking on the Great Emancipator as directed by Stephen Spielberg? Exactly the kind of combination the Academy goes gaga for.

BEST ACTRESS:
Carey Mulligan, The Great Gatsby. With nothing to base an opinion on, why not be super-optimistic about Mulligan's turn as Daisy Buchanan in Baz Lurhmann's 3D version of the literary classic?

Leonardo DiCaprio, though, will continue to not win an Oscar. METRO

▶ Angelina Jolie and her flawless skin.

Professional makeup artist Mariam Jensen — who has styled celebrities from Rihanna to Richard Branson — breaks down what the stars will be doing to wow on the red carpet this year.

1. Strong lips in bold orange and red shades are trending on the red carpet, as seen on stars such as Christina Hendricks at this year's BAFTAS. Orange and red are actually quite wearable, yet many women shy away from trying them. Red lipstick dresses up an outfit — I often tease my clients that red lips are like heels minus the pain! Some gorgeous, wearable reds to try are MAC Lady Danger, Tom Ford Cherry Lush, and for the first-timers try JK Jemma Kidd Air Kiss Shine Lip Gloss in Dress 2 Impress.

2. False eyelashes are huge on the red carpet. At the Grammys, we saw Carrie Underwood, Kelly Rowland and Jessie J rocking long, thick, doll-like lashes. I am a huge fan of Shu Uemura Smokey Layers, which add the length, volume and drama to the eyes, yet are much more user-friendly than some of the versions the celebs are wearing.

If you're not ready to have super-obvious false eyelashes, try another huge celeb secret: mink eyelashes. I love Velour Lashes are soft, cruelty-free and look very natural on the eyes.

3. Flawless skin is another huge trend we are seeing on the red carpet. Gone are the days of sheer tints, as celebs are strutting the red carpet with mannequin skin. To get a perfect, flawless finish, try products like My Face Cosmetics My Mix Foundation, which provides a gorgeous light-weight finish. For those that need more coverage, I am a huge fan of Cover Fx Total Coverage Cream Foundation, which covers every imperfection under the sun with little effort. This miracle product covers acne, pigmentation, rosacea and even tattoos. (Angelina Jolie apparently is a huge fan.)

5 things you didn't know about the Academy Awards

NED EHRBAR
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

1

On-site engraving: It used to be that winners were given a dummy Oscar and would have to wait weeks for the real thing to arrive, but beginning last year the Academy started setting up an engraving station at the Governor's Ball right after the ceremony. No word on how much winners would have to bribe the engravers to embellish the accolades, but if you notice a plaque that says "Viola 'Suck it, Meryl!' Davis," you'll know it's possible.

2

Seat-fillers are hard at work: One of the cushiest gigs in Hollywood for an extra is that of an Oscars ceremony seat-filler. The well-dressed group waits backstage to sit in for presenters, winners or anyone else who needs to get up without leaving the auditorium looking a little less star-filled. The seat-fillers even get to walk the red carpet before the ceremony.

3

Extended acceptance speeches: While winners tend to be swept off the stage after a minute or less of giddiness, there's a camera setup backstage that streams online where they can add in any friends or family members they didn't get a chance to mention — or completely forgot.

4

Even more tuxedos: The Oscars is a black-tie event for everyone, down to the stagehands, caterers and lowly press mulling about backstage. While the more physically demanding jobs — like hauling cameras around the auditorium — get a pass on the bow-tie, the crew members still have to look presentable.

5

Attendees people are paying for drinks: While the Golden Globes offer an open bar throughout the ceremony, the lobby drink stations at the Kodak Theater still charge during the ceremony. So if you see folks heading up the aisle at commercial breaks, assume they're reaching for their wallets.

The Oscar drinking game

Awards shows can get pretty long and tedious, even for movie buffs. This Academy Awards Viewing Party Drinking Game should help enliven the dull moments. The rules are simple. Take a drink every time:

1. The orchestra attempts to "play off" a winner during their acceptance speech (take two if it's during an acting category)

2. Someone reference's Michael Fassbender's nude scenes in Shame

3. You don't recognize someone during the In Memorium montage

4. The Artist wins an award — but do it quietly

5. Someone makes a lame joke about The Artist being a silent film

6. A loser pretends to be cool about losing, but you know they're really angry

7. Billy Crystal makes you laugh

Glamour's 'Jake' advises single gals

HEIDI PATALANO
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN NEW YORK

Jake has been around the Glamour magazine offices since 1956, doling out advice to single women. Many men have shared his name, and the title can be held only as long as the man giving the advice is still single.

Well, one Jake in particular had to hang up his columnist hat recently, but he has continued to share his wisdom with a new book. Always Hit on the Wingman ... And 9 Other Secret Rules for Getting the Love Life You Want offers 10 great tips that will help women relax and learn to love the dating game.

This advice about hitting on the friend of the person you're interested in is great, but I'm wondering if you could offer additional advice about fending off the slightly misled wingman.

Eye contact. It's all about eye contact. While you're making chit-chat with his nice but neutered friend, give your target the odd glance. You don't need to shoot arrows directly into the target's bull's-eye, just send a few warning shots his way. Let him know his friend doesn't have all your attention.

Men say that they love to be hit on, but there's the school of thought that insists that men want to be the ones to chase. Thoughts?

We definitely love to chase. That doesn't mean we don't want to be hit on. This back-and-forth defines the art of flirting — and to some extent, the art of dating. It happens from the very first glance (who looks at who first?) to the first intimate moment (who undresses who?). It's the world's most complicated and hilarious and maddening and sexy game of tag. You're it.

Darling of a novelist

Cristina Alger ditched a prestigious career in law to pen her first book

The Darlings teaches us that more money can often mean more problems

DOROTHY ROBINSON
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN NEW YORK

Cristina Alger, 32, has achieved more professionally than most people can dream of: an undergrad degree from Harvard, followed by a gig at Goldman Sachs, then New York University for law school, capped off with a stint as a bankruptcy lawyer at a white-shoe firm.

All of her high-profile accomplishments led up to the most recent addition to her resumé: author. Her novel, The Darlings, about a privileged New York family who are ensnared in a Madoff-esque Ponzi scheme, is out now.

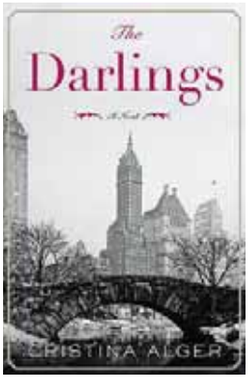
Alger talked to Metro about how, even though she is now a novelist, she still has a hard time saying it.

What is it about rich people that makes them such good material for writers?

It's funny, I was much more taken with the themes of family loyalty and the universality of those themes than just the wealth of The Darlings. But I do think it's more enjoyable to watch such themes play out in prettier settings.

Did you find it difficult to tackle the financial and legal themes in The Darlings in an approachable manner?

I did. I sent [drafts] to non-lawyer and non-finance friends to see if it resonated with them. I find white-collar crime interesting, but it can be really dry on the page.



So, do you call yourself a novelist now?

For a while, the long answer was, "I was a lawyer but now I'm working on a book." It's taken me a little while to get my head around the fact I'm now a professional writer. It's a profession I sort of baby-stepped into. I was writing while I was working a bazillion hours a week as a bankruptcy attorney. But once I started with my agent, I started thinking about it as a full-time occupation.

The downside? You now get a writer's paycheck.

[Laughs] Yes, but it pays in other ways, though! I get a lot more sleep, and it's a lot more fun.

Bobby Brown plans Whitney tell-all book

Friends furious at his attempts to cash in on her death, ditching funeral

ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

Bobby Brown is reportedly looking to write a tell-all memoir about his time with Whitney Houston — but it's not the first time he's had the idea, according to the Huffington Post.

"Back in 2008, the interest in a book on Whitney Houston wasn't that great. Whitney had fallen off the radar back then," a source says.

"But now, following her tragic death, the market has changed. Now is the time for a book that details an honest look into the life of Whitney."

Friends of the late singer aren't surprised by Brown's supposed interest.

"This is a man who left his ex-wife's funeral because he didn't like his seats and went to a paying gig that night," one pal says.

"He didn't get on stage that night because he needed to sing his greatest hits or because Whitney would have wanted him to entertain his fans, he did it to get a paycheck — the same reason he now wants to write a tell-all book."

"The other day I was dancing around the house when they came in and literally stared at me like, 'Oh my God, that's so embarrassing,'" she says of her children.

"But I didn't stop. You can't stop dancing."

Toasting the nominees

PETER ROCKWELL
LIQUIDASSETS@EASTLINK.CA
TWITTER: @THEREALWINEGUY

The last time I was on stage, I had a non-speaking role in a Grade 8 Christmas play. So, I guess you could say that I'm closer to a date with supermodel Kate Upton than I am to ever winning an Oscar.

That said, I've been addicted to the Academy Awards show since I stayed up past my bedtime to watch The Godfather Part II beat The Towering Inferno for best picture in 1974 (I'm still shocked).

With acting out of the question, I'm celebrating what's proved to be a pretty good year for movies by coming up with a liquid match for the front runners vying for the top prize this Sunday.

The Artist
What the heck? A black and white silent film from France is this year's best bet for Best Picture? Its late '20s setting made me thirsty for an ice cold martini made with France's best know neutral spirit Grey Goose Vodka ($44.99 - $49.99). Shaken, not stirred, of course.

The Descendants
Alexander Payne directed the now classic wine-themed Sideways. Celebrate his latest masterpiece (and George Clooney's great performance) with anything but merlot. Think a food friendly, Californian red like Robert Mondavi's 2008 Private Selection Pinot Noir ($15.95 - $19.99). My money is on The Descendants to win.

The Help
This excellent ensemble piece is set in the southern USA during the days when the Civil Rights movement was just getting going. American whisky is the tipple of choice in that part of the world so reach for a chilled shot of Maker's Mark Bourbon ($35.95 - $39.99). Scared of bourbon sans mix? Make the south's most famous cocktail: The mint julep.

Midnight In Paris
An American in Paris travels back in time to the City of Lights' heyday. Toast the return of Woody Allen with the old school, fruit-forward goodness of Georges Duboeuf's 2010 Brouilly ($15.78 - $22.49) from France's Beaujolais region. Baguette, optional.

Moneyball
Take Brad out to the ball game. Though Mr. Pitt's performance is champagne worthy, nothing goes better with this flick's sports theme then a cold brew. Crack open a can or two of Coors Light (15 x 355 ml, $22.32 - $27.29).

PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS CANADA. SOME PRODUCTS MAY NOT BE AVAILABLE IN ALL PROVINCES.

Star dining

The Academy Awards is a pretty elaborate affair. So why not make your party just as fancy with these Smoked Salmon Oscar Bites.

The lemon works well to balance the smoked salmon.

Look for the little cups in grocery store shelves around the deli or in the cracker aisle.

These are also just as delicious on kettle chips for a quick change.

Smoked Salmon Oscar Bites

Preparation:

1. Using electric hand mixer, beat cream cheese until fluffy. Beat in horseradish, shallot, capers, garlic, lemon rind and juice until smooth.
2. Place croustade cups onto serving platter and pipe or dollop a small amount of the mixture into cups.
3. Cut smoked salmon into thin strips and place decoratively on top of cream cheese mixture. Sprinkle with chives before serving.

Oscar chef Wolfgang Puck shares his tips on how to host a glamorous dinner party at home as you watch the awards this Sunday night.

Drink:
"Great champagne makes a celebration. If you are having a viewing party at home, prepare a few freshly squeezed juices such as cranberry, blood orange or peach, to mix in with a glass of champagne for an elegant cocktail."

Eat:
"Instead of having a standard three course dinner, follow some of our recipes this year for an informal tasting menu. Make it easy by preparing our Mac & Cheese or Chicken Pot Pie the day before, so you can enjoy your guests. Our Mini Kobe Burgers, Spicy Tuna Tartare in Sesame Miso Cones and signature pizzas are simple enough to make at home and elegant enough to impress your guests! Sherry's Chocolate Mousse can be chilled in a martini glass or demitasse cup as the perfect finale."

The celebrity dish:
"After sitting for hours during the awards show, the guests love to sample our Smoked Salmon Oscars, Mini Kobe Burgers, and signature pizzas.

The Chicken Pot Pie with black truffles has become a favourite. And everyone loves to go home with a 24 Karat Chocolate Oscar!"

Kings land Carter

Jeff Carter is on his way to the West Coast.

The L.A. Kings acquired the centre from the Columbus Blue Jackets on Thursday night for defenceman Jack Johnson and a conditional first-round pick.

The deal is pending both players passing a physical Friday.

Carter, 27, missed 20 games this season due to a broken foot and a separated shoulder. He had three goals in the Blue Jackets' last game and has 15 goals and 10 assists in 39 games.

"I am obviously excited. I am familiar with the team and a lot of guys on the team," Carter said. "I looked at the Kings at the start of the year as being a club in a good position to win. I look forward to coming to L.A. and being a part of it all."

Columbus acquired Carter from the Philadelphia Flyers last summer for Jakub Voracek and first- and third-round picks in 2011.

He signed an 11-year, $58-million US contract with Philadelphia in November 2010.

"Jeff is a proven goal scorer in our league. He brings goal-scoring abilities, speed and at his age he is entering the prime of his career," Kings president and general manager Dean Lombardi said in a statement. "We also like his versatility as he can play both centre and wing."

Leafs keep sliding

Marleau scores two goals as Sharks edge struggling Maple Leafs

The Toronto Maple Leafs are giving Brian Burke plenty to think about ahead of the NHL trade deadline.

Patrick Marleau scored twice Thursday as the San Jose Sharks edged Toronto 2-1, sending the stumbling Leafs to their seventh loss in eight games.

Burke put the team on alert when he told a Toronto radio station Wednesday that he was in the market for a goaltender. Judging by the team's play of late, he probably won't stop there.

James Reimer earned the start in goal against the Sharks and did his part with 24 saves. Marleau was the only player to beat him with a pair of second-period goals that lifted the Sharks (32-20-7) to their first win in five games.

SHARKS	LEAFS
2	1

Jake Gardiner replied for the Maple Leafs (29-25-7), who fell to 1-6-1 since Feb. 7.

The teams took some time to feel their way into the game, producing a tepid opening 20 minutes. But Marleau put the Sharks ahead early in the second period by quickly firing a Joe Thornton pass over Reimer's shoulder just 32 seconds in.

That put Toronto back on its heels and allowed San Jose to gain some momentum.

Marleau scored his 25th of the season — and second of the night — just 17 seconds after Luke Schenn was penalized for interference. The forward stood at the top of the crease and tipped a Logan Couture shot past Reimer.

There was an uneasy feeling in the Air Canada Centre as the horn sounded on the second period with San Jose ahead 2-0. A smattering of boos could be heard in the otherwise silent arena.

Burke will only get one more opportunity to watch his team before the trade deadline passes on Monday afternoon. The Leafs face Washington on Saturday night — and will likely have fallen outside of the top eight in the Eastern Conference when the puck drops on that one.

Braun's 50-game suspension tossed

Ryan Braun's 50-game suspension was overturned Thursday by arbitrator Shyam Das, the first time a baseball player has successfully challenged a drug-related penalty in a grievance.

The decision was announced Thursday by the Major League Baseball Players Association, a day before the 28-year-old outfielder was due to report to spring training with the Milwaukee Brewers.

Braun's urine tested positive in October for elevated testosterone. ESPN revealed the positive test in December.

Braun has insisted that he did not violate baseball's drug agreement.

"I am very pleased and relieved by today's decision," he said in a statement. "It is the first step in restoring my good name and reputation. We were able to get through this because I am innocent and the truth is on our side."

MLB executive vice-president Rob Manfred said management "vehemently disagrees" with Das' decision.

Travis Tygart, chief executive officer of the U.S. Anti-Doping Agency, called the decision "a real gut-kick to clean athletes."

During the hearing, Braun's side challenged the chain of custody from the time the urine sample was collected by Comprehensive Drug Testing Inc. to when it was sent, nearly 48 hours later, to a World Anti-Doping Agency-certified laboratory in Montreal, two people familiar with the case said. They spoke on condition of anonymity because the hearing was supposed to be confidential.

Das, baseball's independent arbitrator since 2000, informed the sides of his decision and has 30 days to provide a written opinion.

Sample slip-up?

Ryan Braun's urine sample was collected Saturday, Oct. 1, the day the Brewers opened the NL playoffs.

- The collector didn't send the sample to the laboratory until Monday, thinking it would be more secure at home than at a FedEx office during the weekend.
- MLB's drug agreement states: "Absent unusual circumstances, the specimens should be sent by FedEx to the laboratory on the same day they are collected."
- "To have this sort of technicality of all technicalities let a player off ... it's just a sad day for all the clean players and those that abide by the rules within professional baseball," Travis Tygart, CEO of the U.S. Anti-Doping Agency, said.

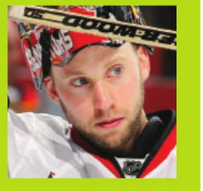
Sports in brief



Ottawa Senators goalie Craig Anderson is out indefinitely with a hand injury.

The Senators say Anderson accidentally cut his right hand while preparing a meal Thursday.

He was treated in hospital and is expected to make a full recovery.

The 30-year-old Anderson has appeared in 56 games this season, posting a 2.85 goals-against average and 29-19-6 record.

Darvish takes to the mound

Star Japanese pitcher makes much-hyped camp debut

CHARLIE RIEDEL/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Texas Rangers would love to hear Yu Darvish's best go at "y'all."

"Some Texas twang, any type of slang," said fellow starter Colby Lewis, who spent time pitching in Japan in the opposite division as Darvish. "He'll have fun. It's going to be good."

Give him a little time, gang. Darvish most certainly would prefer to show off his powerful arm and remarkable athletic abilities before he delves into learning the lingo of the Lone Star State or belting out "Deep in the Heart of Texas."

Darvish, with his shaggy, orange-tinted hair and a dark goatee, pulled a blue long-sleeved Rangers workout shirt over his head Thursday and chatted up teammate Justin Miller as nearly everybody in the clubhouse eagerly watched.

"It's definitely not normal," Darvish said. "Even now, am I the type of player who should get all this attention? I still don't know."

At six-foot-five, he's quite a presence even before considering that the Rangers spent more than $107 million US this winter to land him.

The team's prize off-season pickup looked plenty comfortable in his new surroundings on the first day for pitchers and catchers at Surprise Stadium, where dozens of Japanese reporters arrived early to record the right-hander's every move.

Darvish threw for five minutes in the bullpen followed by five minutes on the mound against live hitters, throwing 19 pitches during that session against a pair of minor leaguers.

Send a KISS

You can now post your kiss, and read even more kisses, at metronews.ca/kiss.

Joombazz, Hi babe, I know we've been having our disagreements and misunderstandings more than ever now but even with everything going on know that my love never stops for you but continues to grow. Everything we go through only makes us stronger and closer. I love you with all my heart baby boo. Take care and smile! :) JABOOMZZ

strong women
Friends are gems. Family are forever hugs and kisses. Little ones need us even if they are not our own. Big high five to all the hardworking people out there trying to make a better world they live in. Its another beautiful day. Smile! SAME CLUB

you, i'd say everyrthing that i know just to see if it would show. but this time i just dont know. i wonder why your always in a good mood though. BABES

Today's horoscope

For today's crossword answers and for expanded horoscopes, visit metronews.ca

♈ Aries March 21-April 20
You have so many good things going for you that you don't need to waste time on schemes that are unlikely to ever come true.

♉ Taurus April 21-May 21
Life is too short to waste time arguing over trivial things, so ignore people who try to involve you in fights that don't matter.

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21
Your mind is forever on the move and at least one of your ideas is touched by genius.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22
Someone needs your help but is afraid to ask. You know who he or she is. Make the first move.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug.23
The answers you get today may not be the answers you want but they are the answers you need to hear.

♍ Virgo Aug. 24- Sept. 22
You are in a hole and no amount of wishful thinking is going to get you out of it. It is time to get practical.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23
If you are going to make the most of your talents, you need to stretch yourself — not just physically but mentally, too.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22
The planets indicate you need help today but you may be reluctant to ask because you don't like to be in anyone's debt. You won't be.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21
Think carefully before making major changes over the next 24 hours. You should be aiming for evolution, not revolution.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20
You need to be careful when dealing with both financial matters and affairs of the heart.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18
Some people are being unnaturally nice to you, making you wonder what they are up to. There is nothing they can do to hurt you.

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20
There's a danger you'll end up partying with the wrong sort of crowd, but so what? SALLY BROMPTON

Catalonia, Spain – Even while parked, the all-new 2012 Chevrolet Cruze is a total showstopper outside the Apolo Theatre. With best-in-class safety and highway fuel efficiency it's a dramatic presence like this, that has the Cruze's next stop in Hollywood.

1. Word 'bar' removed from awning 2. Red dot added to boy's ball cap 3. Red dot on window removed 4. '1' removed from building number 5. '0' filled in in the word Apolo 6. Blue sign removed from wall 7. Driver's side reflector removed from the 2012 Chevrolet Cruze 8. Vent added on red wall 9. Sewer on curb in front of car removed 10. Key entry removed from door handle
